Head Coach Tom Hanna

Maryland men's head golf coach Tom Hanna has more than 25 years of experience in the golf business, both as a coach and as a competitor. Over the past eight years, Hanna has taken a little known, underfunded program and transformed it into a highly recognized contender which has some of the best up-and-coming talent in the ACC. This, along with the expertise that he brings to the program, will be the spark that get the Terps back along the path that will lead to success in both the ACC and nationally.

Originally from Lock Haven, Pa., Hanna is no stranger to success when it comes to golf. In his collegiate days with the Terps, Hanna competed in three consecutive NCAA Tournaments. Following his collegiate playing days, he then moved on to compete on the Professional Golf Association (PGA) Tour. After a brief stint in the PGA, Hanna continued to rack up state and local titles in the Philadelphia section of the PGA. After his time competing there, Hanna remained on the East Coast, gaining extensive experience as a head professional at several prestigious country clubs. He spent three years at Lock Haven Country Club in Lock Haven, Pa., before taking the head professional job at Centre Hills Country Club in State College, Pa., from 1977-84. From 1985-90, Hanna was the director of golf at the Harbour Towne Golf Course in St. Michaels, Md. In 1991, he returned to his alma mater to take over the reigns of the Maryland men's golf program.

Since then, Hanna has steadily improved the golf program. In 1994, the Terps finished fifth at the ACC Championships, their highest finish since 1978. This resulted in Hanna earning ACC Coach of the Year honors. Also, in 1991 Hanna was named the director of the Maryland golf course, a job in which he exerted just as much energy as with the golf team. Hanna helped transform the Maryland golf course into one of the nicest, cleanest, and most popular courses in the area that is used on an annual basis to host numerous local high school golf championships. He recently relinquished his course director duties, but remains heavily involved in ensuring that it remains one of the top courses in the area. Hanna also directs several summer golf camps at the University of Maryland.

Hanna graduated from the University of Maryland in 1971 and received his B.S. in physical education. Hanna and his wife, Kathy, have three children: Betsi, Thomas III, and Jessica.

1999 Spring Season Preview

During the past fall, the Maryland golf team placed in the top five in four of its five tournaments. This spring, more of the same is expected. Head coach Tom Hanna has revived the Maryland golf program in recent years, and is continuing to raise it to the highest collegiate level. After losing only one individual from the fall, Hanna will rely on the experience of six upperclassmen, including three seniors, and the addition of a highly touted freshman this spring to lead the Terps to continued success.

The Terps enter the spring season ranked No. 35 in the Golfweek/Sagarin Rankings after an extremely successful fall and will compete in seven regular season tournaments, including the ACC Championships, before heading to the regional and national championships. In these tournaments, Maryland expects to employ a starting five comprised of three seniors and two juniors, all of whom bring heavy competition experience and the drive to constantly improve their games.

Senior-co captains Pete Coughlin, Mike Deo and Miguel Rivera are likely to see action in every meet along with juniors Keith Unikel and Gary Mankulish. Coughlin, a two-time captain and three-year letterwinner, competed in one tournament last fall, the Duke Golf Classic, and recorded a 15-over par score of 231. Despite limited playing time last fall, Coughlin is the team's vocal leader both on and off the field and provides much of the drive that has put the Terrapins where they are today.

Deo, meanwhile, has been one of the Terps' most improved golfers over the past three years. Last year he qualified for the U.S. Amateur Championships. In the fall, Deo recorded his best outing at the Keswick Club Cavalier Classic, where he scored two rounds of sub-par play to finish with a one-over par 214, tying him for 18th place overall. Deo is one of the focal points of the Terps' game this season and a major threat to all other teams.

The 1999 Terrapins

Maryland's top two golfers, however, are by far Rivera and Unikel. Both are extremely skilled in all areas of the game and the duo has proven to be extremely dangerous when they are at their peak performance. They are recognized as two of the best up-and-coming golfers in the conference and the nation, and have the ability to win any tournament in which they participate. Rivera, a two-time captain, finished the 1998 fall with a 72.45 average, second only to Unikel. He shot sub-par rounds on four occasions, including twice in the 60's. Rivera finished in the top 10 at the Keswick Club Cavalier Classic, shooting a fall-best four-under par 209, tying for fifth place overall. Expect to see Rivera make a name for himself this spring among the nation's elite college golfers.

Along with Rivera, Keith Unikel is one of Maryland's most talented golfers. Unikel became the youngest winner of the Maryland Open this past summer and made national headlines in doing so. He was also a medalist at the 1998 Maryland Amateur Championship. Last fall, he was the Terps' most consistent golfer, leading the team in stroke average (72.35), sub-par rounds played (eight), rounds played in the 60's (three), and top 10 finishes (two). He was also the Terps' top golfer in four of their five tournaments. Unikel's best outing of the fall came at the G. Gunby Jordan Intercollegiate where he finished second and led the Terps to a second place finish with a five-under par 211. With another year to fine tune his skills, Unikel anticipates making the jump from the collegiate level to the professional circuit with a strong arsenal of weapons and a very good head for the game.

Coach Hanna giving advice to Miguel Rivera.

The Terps also expect good things from junior Gary Mankulish, who along with Unikel, is expected to start taking the reigns as a team leader. Mankulish recorded the team's best round last fall with a 65 at the G. Gunby Jordan Intercollegiate where he finished in 17th place with a season best four-over par score of 220. Mankulish is the Terps' longest driver and has the ability to perform extremely well and compete with anyone in the nation.

These five individuals compose the core of the Terrapin lineup. However, there are three solid golfers in reserve if Maryland should ever require their services. They are junior Ben Ricker, sophomore Doug Wade and freshman Brit Musser. All three bring with them numerous accolades and extensive experience both prior to and during their time at Maryland. If these three individuals can come into the rotation at a moment's notice and perform at the expected levels, the Terps should contend in every tournament.

Maryland golf has the potential to be one of the best in the ACC this spring and the Terps are determined to prove that they are not to be taken lightly.

Pete Coughlin

1998 Fall Review

If the fall 1998 season is any prelude to the 1999 spring season, then the Terps can be expected to be one of the top teams in the conference. In the fall, Maryland competed in five tournaments and placed in the top five four times. Included were a first place finish at the Palmetto Classic, a second place finish at the G. Gunby Jordan Intercollegiate, a third place finish at the Keswick Club Cavalier Classic and a fifth place finish at the ODU/Seascape Collegiate Golf Tournament. The Terps' finish at the Keswick Cavalier Classic included a fall best team score of four-under par 848.

Leading the way for Maryland was Keith Unikel, who was the Terps' top finisher in four of Maryland's five meets. This included two finishes in the top five and one in the top 15. In Maryland's first tournament of the fall, the G. Gunby Jordan Intercollegiate, Unikel recorded a personal and team fall best score of five-under par 211, taking second place overall. He also tied with two other golfers for the team's second best score of the fall, the ODU/Seascape Collegiate Golf Tournament, with a four-under par 140 placing him fifth.

After Unikel, co-captain Miguel Rivera was the Terps' most consistent performer. In the four meets that he took part in, Rivera was Maryland's second best finisher on three occasions. In two of those, the G. Gunby Jordan Intercollegiate and the Keswick Club Cavalier Classic, Rivera placed 13th and fifth, respectively. At the Keswick Club Cavalier Classic, he also recorded a personal best and team fall second best score of four-under par 209, tying him for fifth with teammate Ed Flowerdew, who was also impressive in his last season with the golf program.

Flowerdew competed in all five of the Terps' tournaments and recorded his best outing at the Keswick Club Cavalier Classic. He was Maryland's top finisher in the tournament, along with Rivera, recording a four-under par 209 and tying for fifth place. Flowerdew also placed 13th at the Palmetto Classic, recording a three-over par score of 219.

This past fall, the Terps peaked in the national rankings at No. 6 and made the nation take notice. If Maryland can keep its game at the level it exhibited in the fall, the Terps can expected to be seen playing in the NCAA Tournament come the end of the spring.

1998 Spring Review

The Terps' golf program came into the spring season looking to improve and improve it did. Excluding the ACC Championships, it finished seventh or higher in the last four tournaments.

The Pepsi Intercollegiate at Bradford Creek began the turnaround for Maryland as it took the team title with a three-under par 861 and placed three individuals in the top 20. After placing seventh at the Furman Invitational, the Terps then finished in third place at the Cleveland Golf/Augusta State University Invitational. After a disappointing performance at the ACC Championships, the Terps closed out the spring on a high note with a spring best score of nine-under par 855, earning them second place overall.

Among the Terrapin golfers, the duo of Keith Unikel and Miguel Rivera provided much of the production for Maryland. Rivera and Unikel finished as the top two Terp golfers in five of Maryland's seven tournaments. Rivera's best outing of the spring came at the ACC Championships where he finished tied for 11th place with a four-under par 212. Unikel's best outing came in the last tournament of the spring, the Wofford Invitational, where he shot a three-under par 213 to finish tied for ninth. Unikel recorded at least one round of 60 in each of the last four tournaments.

Also making a major contribution to the Terps was Mike Deo, who was Maryland's third highest finisher in four of the Terps' seven tournaments. He recorded a season best two-over par 218 at the Pepsi Intercollegiate at Bradford Creek. Ed Flowerdew also added production to the Terps' overall game with his best performance of the season coming in the last tournament of the spring, the Wofford Invitational. Flowerdew led all Terp golfers, finishing with a team and personal spring best four-under par, placing in a tie for fifth.

University of Maryland

There is no better place to be than the University of Maryland. As Washingtonian magazine noted in its December, 1997 issue, "...kids are turning down schools like Princeton and Virginia to go to College Park." With its top-ranked academic programs, nationally recognized faculty, diverse population and lush 1,580-acre campus located between Washington, D.C. and Baltimore, Md., it's no wonder the University of Maryland is a sought-after destination for some of the state's — and the country's — best and brightest students.

Attracting them are more than 100 majors and some of the highest-ranked programs in the country. For instance, in the 1998 U.S. News and World Report rankings of graduate schools, the Clark School of Engineering was ranked 13th in the nation, the School of Public Affairs was ranked 27th, and also was named one of the country's 25 best business schools for entrepreneurs by Success magazine. And, the university's School of Music was ranked 30th in the country in the first U.S. News and World Report reputational survey of arts programs since 1994.

The reputation of the School of Music promises to grow when the Maryland Center for the Performing Arts opens in 2000. With a 1,200-seat concert hall, a 300-seat recital hall, a 650-seat proscenium theater, a 200-seat dance studio and a 200-seat experimental theater with state-of-the-art lighting, acoustics and theatrical design elements, it will be an ideal home for university-based performing arts programs.

For exceptional students seeking an exceptional education at the University of Maryland, College Park, there are a number of programs designed to enrich the learning experience. Among them are the Honors Program, ranked among the nine best in the country by Ivy League Programs at State School Prices; College Park Scholars, which encourages students who share common intellectual interests to live and study together in 10 specialty areas; and the Gemstone Program, which links student teams from engineering, the humanities, business and the physical sciences in a four-year research project.

Supporting the research needs of students and faculty are some of the country's best research facilities. In 1994, the largest, most technically advanced research archives in the world — National Archives II — moved to College Park. In addition, just outside of College Park are the Library of Congress, the Smithsonian Institution and the National Libraries of Agriculture and Medicine, among others. The university itself has the most comprehensive library system in the area.

The University of Maryland, College Park, as the flagship campus of the state higher education system, is a vital part of Maryland's current prosperity and its vision for the future. For students here, the state offers a bounteous extension of the campus' own wealth of opportunity.

High tech, engineering and service industries thrive in proximity to the campus, offering a wide spectrum of internship and work-study opportunities that only a major metropolitan area can provide. The Kennedy Center alone houses the National Symphony Orchestra, five performance stages, an opera company, and the American Film Institute. In Baltimore, one of the great ports of the world, the Inner Harbor has become a cultural magnet for thousands of tourists each year, offering the National Aquarium, the Maryland Science Center, and other attractions.

Whether your focus is the sciences or the humanities, a small town atmosphere or a metropolitan feel, the University of Maryland, College Park offers a wide range of educational and cultural opportunities. There is no better place to be than the University of Maryland, College Park.

Maryland Athletics

This is Maryland Athletics

At the University of Maryland, winning is not taken lightly. Like the rich history of all its sports programs, championships are a tradition.

Since the 1950s, Maryland has established itself as one of the most successful athletic programs in the nation. This type of success is no accident; it has been built year-by-year on the achievements of outstanding young men and women who were given the opportunity to excel both on and off the field of play. The victories, the championships and the national acclaim are all ingredients of the Maryland athletic program. Student-athletes who attend Maryland are part of a program and a university which thrive on tradition and excellence.

Academic Excellence

The University of Maryland considers intercollegiate athletics an integral part of the collegiate experience. Its existence provides an opportunity for students, faculty, alumni and students to share in the life of intercollegiate athletics.

The Department of Intercollegiate Athletics strives to achieve the same standards of excellence in its athletic program as exist within the university's teaching, research and public service programs. The department embraces the concept that the student-athlete is first and foremost a student, possessing academic abilities, personal interests and ambitions comparable to those of the other members of the student body. Since 1983, 88 percent of freshmen scholarship athletes who completed their eligibility at the University of Maryland earned their degrees.

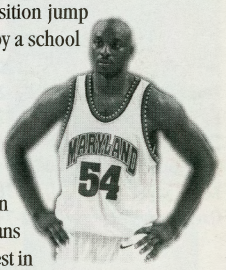
Goals

The great thing about being a Terrapin is the commitment to hard work and dedication. At the University of Maryland, the athletic department is dedicated to supporting a well-balanced Division I program. Athletic director Deborah A. Yow and her dedicated coaches, administrators and staff have re-engineered the department into a responsive and financially sound model — with a clear vision and a determined drive toward national prominence.

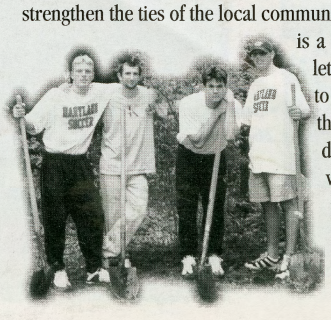
Athletic Success

National championships, conference championships, national rankings and postseason play are all a part of the University of Maryland experience. The University of Maryland has established itself as one of the nation's elite athletic programs. The Terrapins have won 13 national championships, including a record four consecutive by the women's lacrosse team. The Terrapins had plenty of reason to celebrate when it came to intercollegiate athletics in 1997-98, as they posted their highest finish ever (No. 19) in the national Sears Directors' Cup all-sports ranking. Its 38-position jump from the No. 57 spot in 1994-95 is the greatest in that time by a school not previously ranked in the top 25.

Competition



Wearing the Maryland uniform means playing in front of some of the loudest and most supportive fans in the nation. It means playing against the best teams in the country, in the most prestigious conference in the country, the ACC. It means wearing the school colors with pride. It means doing your best in athletics and academics. It is a unique and special feeling being a Terrapin.

Athletes in the Community


From the media spotlight to the community spotlight, Terrapin student-athletes strengthen the ties of the local community by serving as role models. Community service is a key part of the Terrapins' agenda. Student-athletes support many community programs which help to enrich the lives of Maryland youth while teaching the importance of studying hard and saying "no" to drugs and alcohol. Representatives from the University of Maryland athletic department speak to participants and use their image and the appeal of sports to encourage Maryland children to stay in school, improve their reading and writing skills, and to receive their high school diplomas.
